Marathon High Accepting Applications

New After School Half Marathon Training Program for High School Students

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (May 19, 2011) — Marathon High is now accepting applications from schools who would like to participate in the free, school-based, long-distance running program open to all teens in grades 9-12. The 2011-2012 program under the Galloway Training Program will train teens throughout Northeast Florida to complete the challenging goal of running the 26.2 with Donna National Marathon to Finish Breast Cancer Half Marathon. The 15-week training season begins the end of October through mid-February for all high schools throughout Northeast Florida, including Nassau, Duval, Clay and St. Johns counties.

The program is about so much more than exercise. While it is filled with training regimens, nutritional advice, stretching and injury prevention, Marathon High is about changing lives, inspiring dreams, and making a difference. It's about helping teens become the person they were meant to be. It's about shifting the way young people think about themselves and their place in the world, challenging them to make the "impossible" possible, all while doing something most people never do —run a half marathon. To get your local high school involved, contact Deborah Dunham, Marathon High director at MarathonHighFL@aol.com.
